Alpaca fleece processing charges from 1st July 2022

We base our charges on the actual weight of your fleece remaining at different stages of the process as we turn it into yarn, as detailed overleaf. But we've summarised below the price per kg incoming weight (that is, the weight of fleece you send to us for processing) based on an average 75% return rate (how much finished yarn you get back per kg of fleece). There's also a 'Ready Reckoner' on our website which you can use to estimate the likely return rate and cost for your fleece.

Please note that black or dark brown fleeces and fleeces which are very heavily contaminated with vegetable matter will need to go through an additional fibre separating stage before carding, which will increase the costs by between 2% (for fine yarns) and 10% (for chunky yarns) and reduce the average return rate by 5-10%. Dyed fleece sometimes needs to be separated to open up the fibre before carding.

This applies to:

- Black or dark brown fleeces (or blends containing these), which are really difficult to clean so need to go through the fibre separator after the first wash to open up the fibres ready for a second wash before carding
- Fleeces with a lot of vegetable matter, which may go through the fibre separator, or (for very fine or cria fleece) be carded twice. However, please note that it is impossible to remove all the vegetable matter from very heavily contaminated fleeces.
- Dyed fleece sometimes needs to go through the fibre separator to open up the fibre ready for carding
- Rovings to be wound into bumps, which need to go through the fibre separator to allow for carding on our small carder, which has the bump-winding attachment. However, very fine fleeces can only be carded on the large carder, as loose rovings
